

Association for the Protection of Women and Children's Rights

Thank you very much. Peace and stability are key elements for human life, regardless of ethnic origin. The technology of today has opened a way for better communication among all, especially the minority young people. They must pay attention to common points and differences. By doing so, they can contribute to peace and stability. Common cultural activities could also help us to achieve this aim. Thank you.